

My favorite assignments of this year were the python ones. I prefer these because they allow for much more trial and error. The websites tend to be less trial and error but they have things that I like more (will clarify later). The python allows for more team work with all of us being able to work together.

What I like about Web design however is that we get to be more creative with them. You can add more personal touches, like favorite colors, photos, etc. The projects are better for being personal, a lot more than python. Finally the projects have Many many more ways to be done a lot more than python.
